Imagine yourself on the phone tomorrow bidding for a foundation contract, but you tell the general contractor “I am a CFA Certified Contractor”. His response will be one of surprise and admiration.

Ten years from now his response will be “I only hire Certified CFA Contractors.”

WHY: Many code jurisdictions now require, and many more soon will, contractors to be certified

WHY: Promotion of the CFA certification program to jurisdictions will make this the preferred program

WHY: Nationally-recognized certification separates your company from the competition in your local market

The CFA Foundation Contractor Certification is a broad-based effort with requirements in many areas of business management and foundation construction. Successful completion of this general knowledge exam is one of the requirements to obtain certification. Contact the CFA for full program details.

CERTIFICATION SEMINAR: This 2-hour seminar does not teach the exam but provides detail to many of the key fundamental areas that are covered by the exam. One hour is devoted to the current codes and standards affecting the residential concrete foundation industry and two hours are devoted to the technical details of today’s residential foundations from concrete science to the construction process, including many critical details often overlooked such as waterproofing, backfilling and finished grade. In addition, complete information on the Certification Program and the full requirements will be presented.

CERTIFICATION EXAM: The pre-qualification exam for becoming a CFA Certified Contractor consists of 80 multiple choice questions covered in a maximum two-hour period. The exam is open book and based from the Reference Package obtained through the CFA. 70% is the pass/fail rate to establish your pre-qualified status for the next steps towards becoming a Certified Contractor. It is important that you purchase and study the Reference Package ahead of this exam.

CERTIFICATION REFERENCE PACKAGE: Obtained through the CFA, this package compiles the primary resources of importance to the business of constructing quality poured concrete foundations. Although you may have many or all of these references currently in your company, this package combines them all into one location that is easy to reference and quick to use. The certification exam is open book but it is recommended that you obtain this Reference Package far enough in advance to be familiar with the information and its location for quicker reference during the exam process. Once the exam has been successfully completed, this package will be a key to your success as a certified contractor.

HOW SHOULD YOU PREPARE:
- Pre-register for the event using the form on the reverse side of this page
- Expedite the delivery of your Certification Reference Package (see reverse side of this form)
- Familiarize yourself with the detailed information presented in the Reference Package and understand how to use each reference
- Arrive at the Seminar and test site on-time and ready to go
